THERMOMETER LOWEST IN SIX YEARS SUNDAY

Mercury Was 4 Below Zero Yesterday Morning—Makes Better Business for Coal Men and Plumbers Depletes Churches

NEEDY OF CITY SUFFER FROM COLD AND HUNGER

King Winter with his legion of chilling blasts and polar breezes descended on Middlesboro en masse Saturday night, sending the mercury to the lowest point it has reached in six years.

The lowest temperature recorded was 4 degrees below zero Sunday morning, according to E. H. Perkins, weather observer. This was the coldest weather since December 9, 1917, when the official thermometer here registered 18 below zero. Other cold days, January 12, 1918 when temperatures of 4 and 2 below respectively, were attained. On the fourth day of the same month the temperature was 1 below.

Numbers of cases of suffering by the city's needy were reported to the Red Cross and Salvation Army headquarters, and charity workers were kept busy Saturday and Sunday trying to relieve the cold by extra loads of coal, warmer clothing, and in some cases gifts of food. Some of the suffering was alleviated in this way but at best it is bad times for those who live in houses whose thin walls and cracks cannot keep out the persistent cold, even though there is more coal to throw in their stoves.

Stories of frozen and bursted water pipes during the present cold wave are current today. Plumbers were all busy all day yesterday in the work of repairing damages.

Churches and Sunday schools were not very popular yesterday morning, judging from the scant attendance reported from nearly all of them. The most enjoyable pastime during the day was hugging the fire and replenishing it frequently with fresh fuel.

Local coal companies say the weather has already stimulated coal buying. In Michigan where large quantities of locally mined coal are sold the weather has been the coldest for several years, causing the large buyers there to rush in their order.

Normal Temperature on Way

Associated Press

CHICAGO, Jan. 7.—The middle west and northwest welcomed a return to normal temperatures today while sub zero blasts which wrought havoc for 48 hours, spent themselves in the east and south. It is feared, however, that relief is only temporary for colder weather has again appeared in western Canada.

MINISTERS DISCUSS CIVIC PROBLEMS AT MEETING

The local Ministerial Association held its regular meeting this morning, the Rev. A. B. Reeves presiding. Interesting discussions of the church work and civic problems were discussed. Capt. Steinhour of the Salvation Army was present and reported an unusual number of requests for help because of the severe weather. He assured the ministers that all worthy cases coming to his notice have been properly cared for. The Rev. A. A. Ford of Barbourville was present and presenting the work of the Swithmore Association program solicited the support of the ministerial association for the work.

CONDITION OF TOM MANNING, SHOT FRIDAY NIGHT, IMPROVES

The condition of Tom Manning shot by Floyd Gilbert Friday night is improving, according to hospital physicians. The patient was hit by a load of bird shot the greater number of which entered his arm. Doctors say that he will soon recover unless complications set up.

COOLIDGE NOT HURT BY WORK AS PRESIDENT

Chief Executive Shows No Signs of a Breakdown After Five Months of Service in White House

HAS GAINED IN SELF CONFIDENCE AND ASSURANCE

By Harry B. Hunt

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—Five months in the White House worked a noticeable change in Calvin Coolidge.

The Coolidge of Jan. 7, 1924 is far different from the Coolidge of Aug. 3, 192[illegible], both physically and temperamentally. He is in better shape to handle his job today than he was when between bedtime and breakfast he was called upon to assume the office of chief executive.

Recent advices out of Washington that the president is beginning to look tired, that the strain of office is rapidly telling upon him, are not borne out by personal observation and study of the man or knowledge of his actual present condition.

Instead of being worn down, the president has actually put on a few pounds in the last couple months. His chin is fuller. The lines between nostrils and the corners of his mouth are less deeply graven. A smoothing out of the wrinkles at the corners of his eyes indicates a relaxation of the tension under which he took up his duties as president. His bearing is more erect and confident.

Psychological Change Apparent

The real change in Coolidge, however, is not one that can be pictured by physical description. It is revealed rather by his manner, his speech, his more certain approach to the matters under discussion.

The Coolidge of August, 1923, felt himself to be on an uncertain footing.

The Coolidge of January, 1924 has found firm ground and is sure of himself.

The tension of his first two months in the White House undoubtedly told on the president. He had been jumped overnight into a position of supreme trust and authority. Problems of great importance, with which he had had little contact, faced him for decision. He knew that the public generally, even a large part of his own party, regarded him as a political accident. If history were to regard him otherwise it would be because he had measured up to the opportunity the accident had laid bare.

More wearing than the actual labor of those first few months was the mental tension during this period of adjustment. Then as his familiarity with the problems ahead increased, as approval of party leaders followed his decisions, as the country generally began to feel that at least the nation was facing no immediate disaster because of his elevation to the presidency, came a gradual easing of the strain under which he labored. The tenseness about his mouth relaxed. The drawn pucker about his brows loosened. His eyes lost their look of worry.

Less Taciturn Now

Today there is a sense of sureness about the president that was wholly lacking in the first months of his incumbency. He has found himself in his job and his whole bearing reflects it. He is less taciturn. Smiles are no longer strained. He even cracks a sedate, New England joke occasionally.

As a matter of fact, the confining labors of the presidency are much less wearing on a man of Coolidge's training and habits than they were on a man like President Harding. Harding was not a student. He had never been trained to confining routine. Desk work was to him the most monotonous and wearying drudgery.

As student, lawyer, mayor, governor and presiding officer of the Senate, Coolidge came to the presidency thoroughly acclimated for the confining routine of the office. In fact he finds it far less irksome, far less depressing and wearing on his vitality than the deadly monotony of presiding over Senatorial sessions. He craves and thrives on not physical so much as mental action, and he's getting that as president, in much larger doses than he ever did as presiding officer of the Senate. Physically, a brisk walk four or five mornings a week, some deep breathing exercises when the day's work is over and an occasional cruise down the Potomac in the Mayflower for additional ozone keeps

New York Investigator Says Veterans Bureau Director Leaders in Conspiracy

Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—Charges that Charles R. Forbes as director of the Veterans Bureau was the leading factor in the established conspiracy to defraud the government were made by John F. O'Ryan, New York general counsel in his report to the Senate Veterans Committee today. O'Ryan said that in developing this inquiry it had been conclusively established that fraud and corruption existed in the bureau. He further declared other instances of corrupt transactions negotiated by Forbes and others should be furnished by the Department of Justice investigation following leads developed by this investigation. One conspiracy which O'Ryan charged Forbes with being a party to was in awarding hospital construction contracts to favored contractors.

LODGE EXPLAINS U. S. STAND ON SOVIET RUSSIA

Supports Hughes Contention That Communist Official Aid in the Spread of Revolutionary Propaganda Here

WILL NOT GIVE CHANCE COME UNDER DIPLOMATIC SHIELD

Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—The administration's policy of non-recognition of the present Soviet government of Russia was supported vigorously in the Senate today by Senator Lodge, republican leader and chairman of the foreign relations committee. He quoted extensively to show the interlocking of the Soviet government and Communist International and also he brought evidence to support Secretary Hughes contention that Soviet officials are a party through the Communist International to revolutionary propaganda in the United States aimed at the overthrow of the American government. In my judgment, said Lodge, it is no time to give the Soviet government of Russia official recognition and invite their official representative to come among us under diplomatic shield and seek a breed up of our own labor organizations and American freedom and kindle the flame of riot and disorder through our own country.

COMPLAIN OF SALE OF JAMAICA GINGER

Chief Ball Says Much Sold—Gastineau Charged With Sale Which Made Man Drunk

Sale of Jamaica ginger commonly known as Jake and extract of orange peels abbreviated O. P. by local druggists is causing more trouble than moonshine liquor, according to Chief H. F. Ball.

While there are some druggists that would not sell anything in the nature of an intoxicant there are others who sell these extracts regularly he says. Offenders of this class are harder to reach than those who sell whiskey because the law regarding the sale of extracts which may be used for legal purposes is not very clearly defined.

Wallace Gastineau, druggist, is charged with selling Jake to John Allen which made the latter drunk. He will be tried in police court tomorrow morning.

WINNING PLAN FOR BOK PRIZE IS ANNOUNCED

Name of Author Withheld Till Vote of Citizens Giving Opinions on Proposal Has Been Obtained

EDWARD BOK OUTLINES PRIZE WINNING PLAN

Announcement of the plan which has been selected as the prize winner by the American Peace Award for the Edward Bok $100,000 award was made today without, however, the name of the man or woman who originated it. With the announcement of the plan is a novel proposal for American citizens to vote their approval or disapproval of the plan. Exposition of the plan and a blank to fill out for the solicited vote may be found on page four of this issue. There were 22,165 plans submitted.

A letter from Edward Bok explaining the award follows.

Winning plan, No. 1469, selected by the Jury of the American Peace Award created by Edward Bok and offering $100,000 for the best practicable plan by which the United States may cooperate with other nations, looking toward the prevention of war.

With deep satisfaction I present for the consideration and vote of the American people the plan selected by the jury as entitled to the American Award under the conditions.

The Award brought forth 22,165 plans. Since many of them were the composite work of organizations and universities, etc., a single plan often represented the views of hundreds or thousands of individuals. There were also received several hundred thousand of letters which, while they did not submit plans, suggested in almost each instance a solution of the peace problem.

The jury had therefore before it an index of the true feeling and judgment of hundreds of thousands of American citizens. The plans come from every group in American life. Some were obviously from life long students of history and international law. Some were from persons who have studied little but who have themselves seen and felt the horror of war—or who are even now living out its tragedy.

However, unlike they almost all express or imply the same conviction: That this is the time for the nations of the earth to admit frankly that war is a crime and withdraw the legal and moral sanction too long permitted to it as a method of settling international disputes. Thousands of plans show a deep aspiration to have the United States take the lead in a common agreement to brand war in very truth an outlaw.

The plans show a realization that no adequate defense against this situation has thus far been devised and that no international law has been developed to control it. They point out that security of life and property is dependent upon the abolition of war and the cessation of the manufacture of munitions of war.

Some of the plans labor with the problem of changing the hearts of men and disposing them toward peace and good will; some labor to find a practicable means of dealing with the economic causes of war; some labor with adjusting racial animosities; with producing a finer conception of nationalism, etc., etc.

Through the plans as a whole run these dominant currents:

That, if war is honestly to be prevented there must be a right about face on the part of the nations in their attitude toward it, and that by some progressive agreement the manufacture and purchase of munitions of war must be limited or stopped.

That while no political mechanism alone will insure co-operation among the nations, there must be some machinery of co-operation if the will to co-operate is made effective; that mutual counsel among the nations is the real hope for bringing about the disavowal of war by the open avowal of its real causes and open discussion of them.

Finally that there must be some way of defining, recording, interpreting and developing the law of nations.

The Jury of Award unanimously selected the plan given below as the one which most closely reflected several of these currents.

The Honorable Elihu Root, chairman of the Jury of Award, then prepared the following forward looking statement indicating that the mutual

COMMISSIONERS AND MAYOR IN FIRST MEETING

Took Oath of Office at Last Council Meeting Saturday Night—New Officers Divide City Duties

CITY BOOKS TO BE AUDITED VERY SOON

Commissioners Charles F. Cooke and J. F. Evans had their first official meeting with Mayor E. H. Keeney at the city hall at 10 o'clock this morning.

Commissioner Evans was made mayor pro tem of the meeting. Upon a motion of Commissioner Cooke Mr. Evans was made commissioner of public works and public property and Mr. Cooke will be made commissioner of public finance and public safety. Each officer, it was explained, will assist the other in his work where necessary but will be responsible only for the work falling in his departmental division.

Mr. Cooke made a motion that the books of the city be audited at an early date. It is required that they be audited annually, anyway, he explained, and is proper at this time, while the new government is taking, to have the work done. Some outside firm or local certified public accountant, not connected in any way with the city will do the work. Communications with Knoxville and Louisville for obtaining their rates have already been made.

Upon motion the office of city attorney was declared vacant. This office is not required under the commission form of government it is explained and an attorney can be employed for any legal work that may arise.

It was decided at the meeting this morning to have meetings at 10 o'clock each Monday morning.

The matter of selecting new officers was deferred until such a time as the new commissioners have acquainted themselves with the work and with local conditions.

Each of the commissioners and the mayor will execute a bond for $10,000. The charges of the bonding company for these were more than was expected and Mr. Cooke will investigate the matter before the bonds are made.

A revision of the privilege license scale was suggested by the mayor and will be taken up by the new officers at an early date. It is especially important that some action be taken to check the sale of Jamaica ginger for beverage purposes it was pointed out, and it was their opinion that this matter can best be handled by raising the license fee as was done at Pineville.

Chief H. F. Ball suggested that Frank Crabtree, night patrolman who is now paid chiefly by the local merchants, be paid entirely by the city as the other officers are. The merchants, it was said, had complained about the extra payment. Mr. Crabtree now receives $50 per month from the city. Action on the matter was deferred.

Commissioner Cooke expressed satisfaction at having a press representative present at the meetings [illegible] the representative present that the meetings might be made public in detail. Mayor Keeney stated that the Daily News always had a reporter present and that the newspaper had always given the city meetings proper publicity.

The last meeting of the retiring city council was held Saturday night. Bills for the month were read and approved and reports were made by the various departments. A number of excellent speeches were made by the retiring officers.

Commissioners Cooke and Evans took the oath of office before Mayor Keeney at the Saturday night meeting.

AWARD OF BOK PEACE PRIZE

Throughout the United States the newspapers are broadcasting the plan selected by the jury of the American Peace Award as the best practicable plan by which the United States may cooperate with other nations looking toward the prevention of war. The man who outlined this plan will receive $100,000 which Edward W. Bok offered for such a plan if it is found to be practicable.

This plan, then, is being put before the American people with the request that each one express his opinion of it by voting in the blank presented on another page and by sending this vote to the American Peace Award headquarters. The name of the author is withheld so that the voters may consider the plan on its merits alone and not be influenced by the author's name. It is sincerely hoped that a large number of Middlesboro men and women study this plan as presented carefully, and express their opinion to the Peace Award headquarters, endorsing the plan if they see fit or rejecting it, likewise if they see fit. The mere fact of voting can show a sincere interest in the cause of world peace.

A summary of the plan, given below shows that it proposes:

1. That the United States shall immediately enter the Permanent Court of International Justice, under the conditions stated by Secretary Hughes and President Harding in February, 1923.

2. That without becoming a member of the League of Nations as at present constituted, the United States shall offer to extend its present cooperation with the League and participate in the work of the League as a body of mutual counsel under conditions which

1. Substitute moral force and public opinion for the military and economic force originally implied in Articles X and XVI.

2. Safeguard the Monroe Doctrine.

Accept the fact that the United States will assume no obligations under the Treaty of Versailles except by Act of Congress.

4. Propose that membership in the League should be opened to all nations.

5. Provide for the continuing development of international law.

UP TO CONGRESS

Another argument purely commercial, not to speak of the historical and scenic value of the preservation, for those now living as well as for posterity, of the Smokies in all their grandeur, is that of the conservation of these wonderful mountain forests through the protection that would be afforded should the government take over these mountains for a national park.

Even with government rangers looking after them and doing about everything humanly possible to protect them, fires in national forests last year swept 37,214 acres, destroying timber estimated at nearly a half million dollars in value, while fires in privately owned forests destroyed many times that amount of timber. The fact that these fires and these losses are chargeable to the carelessness of men, in some cases criminal carelessness, cannot make good the losses. Another factor to be considered in connection with the proposal to establish a national park in the Smokies is the fact that the nation's timber resources are being reduced on a much larger scale than they are being reproduced.

The report of the Forest Service for the year 1922 shows that this drain on forests amounted to 25,000,000,000 cubic feet with reproduction estimated at only 6,000,000,000 feet. Thus much is seen to give added significance [illegible] that should be considered with reference to the proposal to make a park of the Smokies [illegible] for the [illegible] timber on them, but [illegible] there in sufficient quantity [illegible].

The time [illegible] when timber will be [illegible] the lumberman would [illegible]. THE SANDMAN GETS A SURPRISE

The patch door was open and somebody was inside.

AWAY went Nancy and Nick and Daddy Gander on the [illegible] the [illegible] ice cream that had been stolen from Jack and Jill's party.

The [illegible] of them [illegible].

"Oh I do hope Mother Goose will stay away until it's all over," said Daddy Gander. "Wouldn't I be in a pretty pickle if she'd come home now and find that [illegible] is still out of bed at this hour [illegible] party at that."

"Oh look!" cried Nancy. "Look down through here [illegible] of darkness. There's a light moving. Do you suppose that's Jack Horner?"

Daddy Gander peered over the edge of the green airplane. "Yes, sir! It must be," he exclaimed. "Whoa there, Sally!" And he [illegible] to the [illegible] which stopped immediately and began to descend.

And they landed right beside the Old Woman's Shoe. The patch door was open and somebody was inside.

So very cautiously the three of them peeped in and who, my dears, do you suppose was there? Mister Sandman! He was rushing about from crib to crib and cot to cot, pulling down covers and plumping up pillows as though he had lost his senses.

"Every last one of them!" he kept saying over and over. "Every one is gone as a rabbit's tail. What can the Old Woman be thinking of to keep her children up so late? And if she has lost her senses, where can Mother Goose be to allow such carrying on? And last of all—where can the children be? How can I ever to dump sand in their eyes."

Now, I don't know what made him do it, whether a bit of the Sandman's sand got out of his bag, or what it was. But something got up Nick's nose. "Achoo! Achoo!" he went.

And the Sandman dropped his bag and the string dropped off and all the sand flew out right on the Old Woman's nice clean floor.

"Now you've done it!" cried Daddy Gander, forgetting all about hiding, "a nice muss you've made!"

"Muss!" he exclaimed. "Fuss you mean. Who did all that sneezing? It nearly scared me to death!"

But instead of answering him, did not all three of them start to sneeze again. It must have been the sleepy sand that got into their noses. And at every sneeze more sleepy sand flew out of the door. And it flew across the street and over the tops of three houses to the house that Jack built, where the party was. And every last one of [illegible]. Oh, it was a dreadful state of affairs! And the [illegible] missing, the merry makers fell asleep.

How Novelist Got His Name

Rev. Charles Gordon, known to thousands of admiring readers as "Ralph Connor."

Kipling in his jungle books tells how various animals got their names. This knowledge is much more interesting when it concerns human beings and especially famous authors.

Probably the two most interesting pen names in American literature are "Mark Twain" (Samuel L. Clemens) and "O. Henry" (Sidney Porter).

In Canada lives a man known to million of readers as "Ralph Connor," but it is doubtful if many of his admirers know his real name or how his pen name was chosen.

The Reverend Charles Gordon wrote for an editor friend a Christmas story of the lumbermen of the Selkirk Mountains. So vigorous was the action and so vivid the language that the editor suggested that he use a pen name and asked him to choose one.

Gordon telegraphed "Cannor," made of the first letters of Canadian and Northwest. The editor had no use for the mythical name "Cannor" and changing it to "Connor" added the prefix "Ralph." In this haphazard way was created "Ralph Connor," one of the most famous pen names in the world today. Since that first Christmas story of the Selkirk Mountains novel has followed novel, all having their locale amid the rugged beauty of the Canadian Northwest.

Perhaps for sheer beauty of setting "The Gaspards of Pine Croft," the latest book of the famous minister, eclipses all the rest. The story is a thrilling romance of the beautiful Windermere Valley situated on a loop of the Columbia River, telling of the life and character building of Paul Gaspard, who inherits from his mother a vital and abiding sense of God, from his father an artistic temperament, and of the struggle between the two warring elements in his nature. It tells of his acceptance of the responsibility which tests him body and soul and of life with the Chippewa Indians, who come and go in the mysterious depths of the forest.

Perfumes as Old as History

When and where perfumes first came into existence there is no clear record. Arabia, Egypt, India and Persia used precious ointments, dry and resinous gums or scented oils 2000 year B. C., while the toilet of no Greek or Roman was complete without his daily perfumed rub, no temple rite without its smoking, swinging censer.

In the enlightened days of good Queen Bess perfumes were camouflage for uncleanliness and as time went on their use spread the love for perfumes becoming so strong in England that even a Puritan maid smuggled some over in her coif, landing it sans duty on Plymouth Rock—a feat impossible today.

Centuries passed before much progress was made in the perfumers art. Not till Catherine de Medici wed the Duke of Orleans and brought from Italy a Florentine perfumer named Rene, who started a shop in Paris, was the tremendous development of the trade established. The vogue for foreign perfumes still holds sway over the imagination of many women who are influenced more by the magic word "imported," the always attractive label and bottle, than by the actual scent.

It remained for the pioneer American perfumers Colgate and Co. to prove this by actual experiments. Believing that most women selected their perfumes by the eye rather than by the sense of smell they made this test. Three of the must popular imported perfumes were purchased and three of their own manufacture poured into six plain bottles each numbered. A duplicate list was locked in a safe so that not even the experimenters knew one perfume from another. Then little strips of blotting paper were numbered and scented from each bottle.

Over a hundred women representing society, the stage, colleges, business and professions were asked first to name their favorite perfume and, then to choose from the scented slips the one which pleased them most. Before the test was made nearly every woman frankly confessed her preference for foreign perfumes but with only a sense of smell to guide them the majority selected the American perfumes as their favorites, proving that whether of foreign or domestic make, fragrance alone should be a woman's guide when selecting her own individual scent. Although the same essential oils, gums and spices are used as in the imported perfumes the American manufacturer won out over his foreign competitors. When one realizes the gracious part perfumes play in life their beneficent effect on the nerve centers it is not strange that they have come to be considered necessities rather than luxuries.

Ideal of Idol

Howard Gray, "Princeton's most popular man," apparently meant what he said when he bespoke his opposition to cigarette-smoking girls. His engagement to De Weenta Conrad (above) Omaha belle, has just been announced, and she has never smoked. Gray, who was picked for all-American end while playing with Princeton, and held many student and scholastic honors there, is now studying medicine.

TRAILS

When I have passed the last, far hill-line turning
Of life's long trail against the sunset burning,
If some can say: "I saw his camp-fire's flame
Gleam through the dark as up the trail I came,
Footweary, and discouraged—and found rest.
He never thought to ask me for my name,
But filled the coffee-pot and swiftly spread
Fresh gathered balsam branches for my bed.
We talked until the low moon notched the West,
He said not much. But somehow when he spoke
Within my weary heart new courage woke.
Forgotten was the aching muscle strain
Of plodding feet and lagging paddle-stroke,
The sullen Future turned a comrade-face,
The grim world seemed a kindly camping place
The trail-end grew a gladder thing to gain!
Then can I face the coming night with laughter,
Till dawn light gilds the trails of the Hereafter.

SISTER Mary's KITCHEN

PRUNE RECIPES

DOES your family refuse to eat plain everyday stewed prunes?

Then try these recipes for luncheon or dinner and 'slip one" over on them. The very fact that the time is out of the ordinary for serving prunes will aid the housekeeper. While John may say sternly, "You know I don't eat stewed prunes" at breakfast time I'll warrant he'll eat this prune cocktail at dinner time without a murmur.

In the winter when succulent vegetables are high and in some localities hard to get, prunes are an important part of the diet. They should be used often in some form or other.

Prune Cocktail

Choose fine large prunes. Allow three prunes for each person to be served. Wash well through several waters and let stand in cold wated to cover over night. Bring slowly to waters and let stand in cold water reduce heat and simmer until the water is absorbed and the prunes are tender but not mushy or broken. Let stand in the liquid until cool. When cool cut in halves and remove stone. Cut each half in two and put in cocktail glasses. Add one teaspoon lemon juice and two tablespoons orange juice to each galss and chill, Serve very cold.

Ring of Prunes

One pound prunes, ½ cup sugar, 4 teaspoons granulated gelatin, whipped cream, candied cherries and citron.

Wash prunes well and let stand over night in cold water to cover. In the morning stew slowly in this water until tender but not broken. Drain and measure juice. There should be two cups. Soften gelatin in 1 cup cold water and add to boiling prune juice and sugar. Stir until dissolved. When cool dip each prune, with stone removed into the liquid and place around a ring mold in rows. When firm to the touch add the jelly. Let stand in a cool place until set and cold. Turn out on a large plate and fill the center with whipped cream sweetened and flavored with vanilla, garnish with the cherries and thin narrow strips of citron and serve. This will serve eight persons.

Salad Prunes

Scrub prunes and wash through several waters. Cover with boiling water, cover bowl tightly and let stand until cold. Drain and remove stones. Mix one Neufchatel cheese with two tablespoons finely chopped nuts and enough cream or olive oil to make moist. Fill prunes with mixture and serve with head lettuce salad with French dressing. This amount of cheese and nuts will fill 16 large prunes and serve four persons.

Did you ever wash prunes well, remove the stones and fill the cavitles with peanut butter? If you like peanut butter you will like these prunes better than candy and find them excelent sweetmeat for the kiddies.

Prune Pudding

One-half pound prunes, 2 cups cold water, ½ cup sugar, juice 1 lemon, 4 tablespoons cornstarch, 1½ cups boiling water, 1 inch stick cinnamon.

Wash prunes through several waters. Put in stew pan, ad dcold water and let stand one hour. Boil until soft in this water. When cool enough to handle remove stones. Add prune juice boiling water, sugar and cinnamon and simmer 15 minutes. Mix cornstarch with enough cold water to pour easily and stir into prune mixture. Cook five minutes. Remove stick of cinnamon, add lemon juice and pour into a mold. Let stand on ice or in a cold pace for two hours. Unmold and serve with plain or whipped cream.

LAFOLLETTE THEATRE TO BE OPENED SOON

LA FOLLETTE, Tenn., Jan. 7.—Within the next two or three weeks La Follette's new theatre will be open a two-story steel and brick structure, built by Harrison Parrott. It is modern in every respect, particular emphasis being laid on ventilation, light, heat and acoustics.

The Hendren Theatre company of which Earl Hendren is president, has leased the building for a period of years and is equipping it in modern style. One of the most modern of orchestral instruments, is in transit from Berkley, Calif.

Mr. Hendren has been in moving picture business at La Follette for some time, operating the Palace theatre. He also operates a house at Peabody, Tenn.

The stage will be equipped also for road shows of the better type.

NEW YORK NEWS LETTER

by

Carol Colbourne

New York—The most important educational event of the week is the election of Dr. John H. Finley, famous educator and journalist, as president of the National Child Welfare Association of 70 Fifth Ave., New York. The election of Dr. Finley is another proof of the progressive spirit which has animated the National Child Welfare Association during its ten years existence. Its work is fundamentally educational. Its posters cover every phase of the child's bodily, mental and spiritual development from before birth to full manhood.

Speaking of one these posters, one mother said, "I nagged at my boy for weeks and months until, in despair, I stopped talking and just hung up that poster in the bathroom. From that day, I never again had to remind him to brush his teeth." Truly, posters speak louder than words!

The Association insists that health is not an end in itself, but only a means to greater happiness and usefulness,—that the true aim of education is character-building. Therefore a great part of the more than 500 posters issued by the organization teach such virtues as thrift, kindness to animals, good habits in reading, neatness, honesty, courage, industry, and the other fundamentals of manly and womanly character. Parents all over the country,—and in foreign lands also,—testify to the value of the Association's picture-lessons as "First Aid to Parents" in presenting ideals of right living to their boys and girls.

Entirely new are luncheon sets of mulberry colored glass with coin gold edges and monograms. Italian linen table runners and doilies in the same rich hue are used with the glass, although those of deep ecru and even white are often employed.

Flexible mohairs in brilliant block prints, stripes, or in plain colors are used for furniture covering and window draperies. The patterned fabric is gay with conventionalized flowers and birds, while the plain comes in all shades.

No wonder life grows complex, when the supplying of humanity with just one article of clothing becomes such an amazing and elaborate business. Stockings, for instance! They used to be just stockings; and two pairs, one finer than the other; saw a person well through a season, provided for all occasions. Whether it was short skirts, the French influence, or that modern deus ex machina, the advertising man, which brought hosiery into a primary place in the world of costuming, I am not sure. But today, it can hardly be termed anything as incidental as an accessory. Whole outfits are determined by it, and instead of wearing one pair now with several dresses, we change a costume by having several pairs to wear with each. One company alone in this country could supply a woman with a different kind of hose every day for years without ever repeating. In Onyx hose, for example, a woman can wear a different kind every day for four years, four months and twenty days; and it isn't only women who go in for variety. A man could demand equal novelty and it would take one year, nine months, and 14 days for him to reach the point of duplication.

New York shipping circles were thrilled by the recent arrival of the "Duilio" of the Navigazione Generale Italiana. The "Duilio" is considered by steamship men the most beautiful ship in the world. It is a floating museum of art in the form of antique furniture and beautiful woods, paintings and tapestries.

During this, its first trip to the United States, the leading Italian motion picture company produced on board many scenes of a new comedy by Giovacchino Forzano, famous scenario writer. Other scenes were taken in New York, and the final scenes were filmed during the return voyage to Italy. In the company were Signora Jacobini, called the Mary Pickford of Italy, Eleuterio Rudolfi, Signer Bilancio and "Maciste," famous as the gigantic slave in "Cabiria." The "Duilio" will run regularly in the passenger service between the United States and Italy.

$100,000 PEACE PLAN PRIZE AWARDED

Advocates Entering World Court and Cooperation With League Without Full Membership at Present—Suggests League Membership Be Opened to All Nations and Provides for Development of International Law.

The American Peace Award brought forth 22,165 plans and many thousands of letters. Since many of the plans were the composite work of organizations, universities, etc., a single plan often represented the views of hundreds or thousands of individuals. The content of these plans is therefore an index of the true feeling and judgment of hundreds of thousands of American citizens.

These plans come from every group in American life. Some are obviously from lifelong students of history and international law. Some are from persons who have studied little, but who have themselves seen and felt the horror of war—or who are even now living out its tragedy.

But among them all are these dominant currents: that, if war is honestly to be prevented, there must be a face-about on the part of the nations in their attitude toward it; that by some progressive agreement the manufacture and purchase of the munitions of war must be limited or stopped; that while no political mechanism alone will insure cooperation among the nations, there must be some machinery of cooperation if the will to cooperate is to be made effective; that mutual counsel among the nations is the real hope for bringing about the disavowal of war by the open avowal of its real causes and open discussion of them; and finally that there must be some means of defining, recording, interpreting and developing the law of nations.

Statement of Jury of Award

The Jury of Award realizes that there is no one approach to world peace, and that it is necessary to recognize not merely political but also psychological and economic factors. The only possible pathway to international agreement with reference to these complicated and difficult factors is through mutual counsel and cooperation which the plan selected contemplates. It is therefore the unanimous opinion of the Jury that of the 22,165 plans submitted, Plan Number 1469 is "the best practicable plan by which the United States may co-operate with other nations to achieve and preserve the peace of the world."

It is the unanimous hope of the Jury that the first fruit of the mutual counsel and cooperation among the nations which will result from the adoption of the plan selected will be a general prohibition of the manufacture and sale of all materials of war.

The Question to Be Voted Upon

The substantial provisions which constitute the plan selected by the Jury of Award, and upon which the vote of the American people is asked, are hereby submitted by the Policy Committee as follows:

I. ENTER THE PERMANENT COURT

That the United States adhere to the Permanent Court of International Justice for the reasons and under the conditions stated by Secretary Hughes and President Harding in February, 1923.

II. COOPERATE WITH THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS, WITHOUT FULL MEMBERSHIP AT PRESENT

That without becoming a member of the League of Nations as at present constituted, the United States Government should extend its present cooperation with the League and propose participation in the work of its Assembly and Council under the following conditions and reservations:

Safeguarding of Monroe Doctrine

1. The United States accepts the League of Nations as an instrument of mutual counsel, but it will assume no obligation to interfere with political questions of policy or internal administration of any foreign state.

   In uniting its efforts with those of other States for the preservation of peace and the promotion of the common welfare, the United States insists upon the safeguarding of the Monroe Doctrine and does not abandon its traditional attitude concerning American independence of the Old World and does not consent to submit its long established policy concerning questions regarded by it as purely American to the recommendation or decision of other Powers.

No Military or Economic Force

2. That the only kind of compulsion which nations can freely engage to apply to each other in the name of Peace is that which arises from conference, from moral judgment, from full publicity, and from the power of public opinion.

   The United States would assume no obligations under Article X in its present form, or under Article XVI in its present form in the Covenant, or in its amended form as now proposed, unless in any particular case Congress has authorized such action.

   The United States proposes that Articles X and XVI be either dropped altogether or so amended and changed as to eliminate any suggestion of a general agreement to use coercion for obtaining conformity to the pledges of the Covenant.

No Obligations Under Versailles Treaty

3. That the United States will accept no responsibilities under the Treaty of Versailles unless in any particular case Congress has authorized such action.

League Open to All Nations

4. The United States Government proposes that Article I of the Covenant be construed and applied, or, if necessary, redrafted, so that admission to the League shall be assured to any self-governing State that wishes to join and that receives the favorable vote of two-thirds of the Assembly.

Development of International Law

5. As a condition of its participation in the work and counsels of the League, the United States asks that the Assembly and Council consent—or obtain authority—to begin collaboration for the revision and development of international law, employing for this purpose the aid of a commission of jurists. This Commission would be directed to formulate anew existing rules of the law of nations, to reconcile divergent opinions, to consider points hitherto inadequately provided for but vital to the maintenance of international justice, and in general to define the social rights and duties of States. The recommendations of the Commission would be presented from time to time, in proper form for consideration, to the Assembly as to a recommending if not a law-making body.

Author's Name Not to Be Revealed Until After Referendum

In order that the vote may be taken solely upon the merits of the plan, the Policy Committee, with the acquiescence of Mr. Bok, has decided not to disclose the authorship of the plan until after the referendum. The identity is unknown to the members of the Jury of Award and the Policy Committee, except one delegated member.

KENTUCKY HEALTH WORK ECONOMICAL

Lowest Cost Per Capita of Any State in Union—Service Very Satisfactory

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Jan. 7.—Comparative statements of the public health work in other states indicate that the work in Kentucky is as adequately done as in any other state, more so than in most of them and at the lowest per capita cost. This sums up the report of Henry E. James, State Inspector and Examiner of his investigation of the State Board of Health covering two years. The report was made public by Mr. James under date of December 28, 1923.

"I can say that on other department of the State shows more efficient management or more economical expenditure of money" he continues. Discussing the work of the Hygenic Laboratory, Mr. James said; "the activities of the laboratory alone, if charged at the lowest ordinary rate for similar services would amount to more than the entire propriation for the State Board of Health."

Kentucky's campaign against tuberculosis which the inspector characterized as very effective, he found to have been conducted at a cost of one per cent of the cost in some states. Mr. James also found that the bureau of vital statistics was conducted on a lower salary basis than in any other state.

Outstanding among the achievement of the board according to the report, has been the progress in public health work carried on by the public health schools, conferences, clinics and all-time county health departments.

The Inspector and Examiner suggests to the governor, to whom he addresses his report, that the legislature gradually increase its yearly appropriation until every county in the state has an all-time health office.

CHILDREN GIVEN AS BAIL BY FATHER IN FIGHT FOR LIBERTY; ARE ACCEPTED THEORETICALLY

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan.7.—Hippolite Lapachet here has bartered his six children for freedom.

They constitute a bond of living flesh pending the father's trial on a charge of violating the liquor laws.

Thus in modern times has a re-enactment of Shakespeare's famous play "The Merchant of Venice," taken place, with the role of Shylock vested in the government.

Should Lapachet not appear on the date set for hearing the youngsters are forfeit.

Just what would happen to them in such event is a matter grave legal minds are pondering.

Prohibition agents declare they found several stills on Lapachet's ranch.

Children His Sole Wealth

Lapachet denied his guilt, but could proffer nothing of value as bail.

"Money I have not," he told Federal Judge John S. Partridge, "But my bambinos! They are six. Please, Mr. Judge, take them. It is proof that I will not run away!"

For some time the court debated the plea; then accepted it.

The edict, creating legal precedent and history, placed Eugene, 17; Lawrence, 15; Emily, 13; Frances, 11; Blanche, 10, and Johnny Lapachet, 9, in nominal custody of the United States of America.

On a previous occasion Lapachet parted with his children.

That was when juvenile officials took them away following the mother's unfathomed departure four years ago.

They were subsequently returned when Lapachet demonstrated his unquestioned capability of caring for them.

"Since my wife went away I am both father and mother too," Lapachet said.

"My bambinos I love more than anything in the world. For them I would do anything.

"I wash them and dress them when school time comes. I cook for them and keep house, too.

Love Wins Debate

"Why, then, is it, when they mean so much to me, should anyone ask have I no money to get out of jail when I give my bambinos as pledge instead?"

"A man with a record such as this, with children whom he loves, is not likely to run away from the court's jurisdiction," Judge Partridge said in explanation of his unparalleled decision.

"It would be no less than an outrage to keep him in jail when professional criminals gain freedom on bail.

"The children are accepted as theoretical bond.

"In my mind there is no doubt but what this man will be in court on the date appointed for his trial.

"He needs his children and they need him.

"I order him released."

The ages of these patients range from 4 months to 60 years. Many of the older patients have been suffering from syphilis for some years as shown by the fact that three or four have lost their eyesight and others show a progressive decline in health. Approximately 80 per cent of those suffering from venereal infection are under 30 years of age, and 60 per cent are found to be under 20 years of age.

The medicine used in the treatment of syphilis is furnished free to Bell county by the U. S. Public Health service and the State Board of Health, and amounts to about $1200 a year.

Wasserman Blood Tests

There were 620 tests made during the year.

There were 75 county visits made to the following: Red Bird, Brownie's Creek, Cary, Arjay; Blanche, Straight Creek, Kettle Island, Colmar, Calvin, Four Mile, Bird's Branch, Ferndale, Stony Fork, Page, and Varilla.

Many of these visits were made to quarantine against smallpox, scarlet fever, measles and diptheria, and to administer diptheria antitoxin to children who had been exposed to diptheria. Visits were also made to the county farm.

Dairies located in Bell county as well as those located in Virginia and Tennessee which supply milk to this county have been inspected from time to time.

Inspection of food establishments in Pineville and Middlesboro have been made frequently. Nuisances have have been abated when found. About 150 visits were made to attend prisoners in the jail s at Pineville and Middlesboro.

Nine hundred and eight-four school children of the county have been examined and of this number about 33⅓ per cent were found to have correctable defects. It is very encouraging to report these defects have been corrected when brought to the attention of the parents. Every possible effort will be made to examine every school child in Bell county during the coming year.

It is to be hoped that the fiscal court at their meeting January 7 will see their way clear to appropriate funds sufficient to continue this work for 1924.

Prepared for the Fight

[illegible] Coolidge never will look [illegible] as President Harding did He is naturally light, almost scrawny, with the rather raw-boned physiognomy typical of the Vermont country folk His skin is of that peculiarly thin colorless texture that often accompanies his kind [illegible] red hair [illegible] skin does not tan that holds little color and that always has a pallor [illegible] of sickness [illegible] that breaks only on the face and hands into innumerable little crinkly lines

The test of Coolidge's physical stamina, of course, will come within the next four months With a Congress session [illegible] and a pre-convention fight for renomination filling the time to June [illegible] possible campaign [illegible] the G O P running through to early November if Coolidge stands the pace that long there should be [illegible] for him, physically, in the next four years [illegible] it will be the [illegible]

WINNING PRIZE FOR BOK PEACE AWARD

counsel and cooperation among the nations provided in the selected plan may lead to the realization of another—and not the least important of the dominant desires of the American public as expressed in the plans

It is the unanimous hope of the jury that the first fruit of the mutual counsel and cooperation among the nations which will result from the adoption of the plan selected will be a general prohibition of the manufacture and sale of all material of war."

The purpose of the American Peace Award is thus fulfilled To reflect in a practicable plan the dominating national sentiment as expressed by the large cross-section of the American public taking part in the Award

I therefore commend the winning plan as unanimously selected by the jury of award, and Mr Bok's statement of the further course to be attained by the counsel and cooperation provided in the plan, to the interest and the widest possible vote of the American people

Are You Keeping Those New Year's Resolutions?

RESOLVED

To work hard and intelligently. To perform my duties better than ever before To be cheerful To be fair To develop greater courage and self-reliance To exercise initiative and resourcefulness To seek quality and value rather than mere price in the purchases I make In justice to myself to take a demonstration in a new Chevrolet before buying an automobile. In everything I undertake, to think of the future and not only of today. To guard my health by spending as much time as possible in the open air and by paying proper attention to diet. These things I will do in 1924.

Fordor Sedan

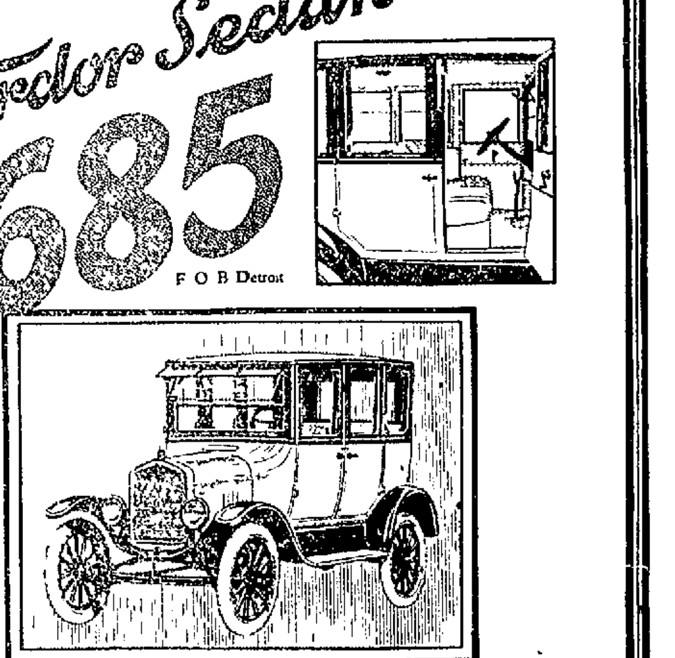
F O B Detroit



IT IS not at all surprising that the new Fordor Sedan is proving extremely popular [illegible] For this handsome closed type body is a truly exceptional value at its present low price.

Important improvements in outward design and interior appointments have made it a much more attractive car — more gracefully proportioned, more richly furnished.

Notable among the changes introduced are a higher radiator, larger hood and cowl, water-tight windshield, more sturdy steering column, broadcloth upholstery, revolving type window regulators and bar type door handles.

Inspect this new Fordor Sedan at your first opportunity [illegible]

It will be a pleasant surprise for every member of your family.

You can buy this car through the Ford Weekly Purchase Plan.
